PREFACE

This report presents statistics on the number of inhabitants of the State, its counties, and minor civil divisions (townships, etc.). In addition, separate figures are also presented for urban places, wards of cities of 5,000 or more, and other areas of the State. These data are based upon tabulations from the Seventeenth Decennial Census of the population of the United States, its Territories, and possessions conducted as of April 1, 1950. Provision for the Seventeenth Decennial Census was made in the act providing for the Fifteenth and subsequent decennial censuses which was approved on June 18, 1929.

The major portion of the information compiled from the Census of Population of 1950 will appear in Volume I, Number of Inhabitants, and in Volume II, Characteristics of the Population. This report is a preprint of Chapter 43 (Texas) of Volume I, which is to present, in a single publication, statistics on the number of inhabitants for each State.

The materials presented here will also appear as Chapter A of Part 43 (Texas) of Volume II. Volume II will comprise a series of separately published parts, one for each State and a summary for the United States. The use of separate parts makes the basic materials on characteristics of the population for a given State available to the public in a single publication. Within the part for a State, Chapter A will recapitulate the statistics on the number and distribution of the population within a State; Chapter B will present statistics on the general characteristics of the population of the various political subdivisions of the State, such as counties, incorporated places, and the like; and Chapter C will present data on the detailed characteristics of the population of the larger areas within the State, such as cities of 100,000 inhabitants or more and standard metropolitan areas.

The materials presented here were prepared under the supervision of Howard G. Brunsman, Chief, Population and Housing Division, and Dr. Henry S. Shryock, Jr., Assistant Chief for Population Statistics, by Dr. Henry D. Sheldon, Chief, Demographic Statistics Section, and Charles P. Brinkman, Chief, Population Distribution Unit; the compilation of the statistics was under the direction of Robert B. Voight, Assistant Chief for Operations. The collection of the information on which these statistics are based was under the supervision of Lowell T. Galt, Chief, Field Division. The geographic work, including the delineation of special types of urban territory and the preparation of maps, was under the supervision of Clarence E. Batschelet, Chief, Geography Division.

TEXAS

Number of Inhabitants

The State.—Texas, originally a part of Mexico, won its independence by revolution in 1835 and 1836, and continued as an independent republic until 1845, when it was annexed to the United States and admitted to the Union as the twenty-eighth State. At this time it included area now comprising parts of Colorado, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Wyoming. In 1850, with the transfer to the United States of the territory now in these other States, Texas assumed practically its present boundaries. Upon settlement of a boundary dispute with Oklahoma in 1930, Texas assumed its present boundaries. Its population on April 1, 1950, according to the Seventeenth Census, was 7,711,194. The State has a land area of 263,513 square miles. In 1950 there was an average of 29.3 inhabitants per square mile as compared with an average of 24.3 in 1940. Among the States, Texas ranked sixth in population and first in land area.

In 1850, when it was first enumerated in a Federal census, Texas had a population of 212,592 (table 1). In 1950, 100 years later, the population was more than 36 times as large. Texas has always grown at a more rapid rate than the Nation as a whole. By 1900 the State had a population of 3,048,710, or 14 times as large as in 1850. The rates of growth in the twentieth century ranged from 10.1 percent between 1930 and 1940 to 27.8 percent between 1900 and 1910. The numerical increase of 1,296,370 for the decade 1940 to 1950, the largest in the history of the State, represented a gain of 20.2 percent over the 1940 population of 6,414,824.

Usual place of residence.—According to usual Census practice, which dates back to 1790, each person enumerated in the 1950 Census was counted as an inhabitant of his usual place of residence or usual place of abode, which is generally construed to mean the place where he lives and sleeps most of the time. This place is not necessarily the same as his legal residence, voting residence, or domicile, although, in the vast majority of cases, these different bases of classification would be identical.

In the application of this rule, persons were not always counted as residents of the places in which they happened to be found by the census enumerators. Persons in places where guests usually pay for quarters (hotels, etc.) were enumerated on the night of April 11, and those whose usual place of residence was elsewhere were allocated to their homes. Visitors found staying in private homes, however, were not ordinarily interviewed there. Information on persons away from their usual place of residence was obtained from other members of their families, landlords, etc. If an entire family was expected to be away during the whole period of the enumeration, information on it was obtained from neighbors. A matching process was used to eliminate duplicate reports for persons who reported for themselves while away and were also reported by their families at home.

Persons in the armed forces quartered on military installations were enumerated as residents of the States, counties, and minor civil divisions in which their installations were located. Members of their families were enumerated where they actually resided. In the 1950 Census, college students living away from home were considered residents of the communities in which they were residing while attending college, rather than as persons temporarily absent from their parental homes as was the practice in 1940. In 1950 the crews of vessels of the American Merchant Marine in harbors of the United States were counted as part of the population of the ports in which their vessels were berthed on April 1, 1950. In 1940 such persons were treated as part of the population of the port from which the vessel operated. Inmates of institutions, who ordinarily live there for long periods of time, were counted as inhabitants of the place in which the institution was located; whereas patients in general hospitals, who ordinarily have short stays, were counted at, or allocated to, their homes. All persons without a usual place of residence were counted where they were enumerated.

Urban and rural population.—The 1950 urban population of Texas comprised 4,838,060 persons, or 62.7 percent of the population of the State (table 1). This urban population was living in the 272 urban places in the State and in other territory in the urban-fringe areas of the 12 urbanized areas in the State. Nearly three-fifths of the urban population was living in the urbanized areas (table 2).

The rural population of Texas comprised 2,873,134 persons, or 37.3 percent of the population of the State (table 1). Of the rural population, 361,654 persons, or 12.6 percent, were living in the 195 incorporated and 33 unincorporated places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants (table 2).

Urban definition.—Under the urban definition established for use in the 1950 Census, the urban population comprises all persons living in (a) places of 2,500 inhabitants or more incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns,¹ and villages; (b) the densely settled urban fringe, including both incorporated and unincorporated areas, around cities of 50,000 or more; and (c) unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more outside any urban fringe. The remaining population is classified as rural. According to the urban definition used in previous censuses, the urban population comprises all persons living in incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more and areas (usually minor civil divisions) classified as urban under special rules relating to population size and density.

In both definitions, the most important component of the urban territory is the group of incorporated places having 2,500 inhabitants or more. A definition of urban territory restricted to such places, however, would exclude a number of equally large and densely settled places, merely because they were not incorporated places. Under the old definition, an effort was made to avoid some of the more obvious omissions by the inclusion of the places urban under special rules. Even with these rules, however, many large and closely built-up places were excluded from the urban territory. To improve the situation in the 1950 Census, the Bureau of the Census set up, in advance of enumeration, boundaries for urban-fringe areas around cities of 50,000 or more and for unincorporated places outside urban fringes. All the population residing in urban-fringe areas and in unincorporated places of 2,500 or more is classified as urban according to the 1950 definition. (Of course, the incorporated places of 2,500 or more are urban in their own right.) Consequently, the special rules of the old definition are no longer necessary.

According to the new urban definition, the 1950 urban population of Texas included the following components: (1) The 4,612,666 inhabitants of the 258 incorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; (2) the 54,764 inhabitants of the 14 specially delineated unincorporated places of 2,500 inhabitants or more; and (3) 170,630 persons living in other territory in the urban-fringe areas of the Amarillo, Austin, Beaumont, Corpus Christi, Dallas, El Paso, Fort Worth, Galveston, Houston, Port Arthur, San Antonio, and Waco Urbanized Areas. Since there were no places in Texas classified as urban under special rule according to the old definition, the population of the first element constituted the urban population under the old definition. The population of the remaining elements—225,394—represents the gain in the urban population of Texas which resulted from the change in definition.

Although the Bureau of the Census has employed other definitions in the course of its history, the statistics on the population by urban and rural residence for the years 1850 to 1940 are shown in accordance with the 1940 definition. The 1950 statistics are shown in accordance with both the new and old definitions.

Trends of urban and rural population.—Trends in the urban and rural population can be examined only on the basis of the old definition. On this basis, the 1950 urban population of 4,612,666 was nearly nine times as large as the 1900 urban population of 520,759 (table 1). The numerical increase of 1,701,277 between 1940 and 1950, the largest in the history of the State, represented a gain of 58.4 percent over the 1940 urban population of 2,911,389. Two of the incorporated places of 10,000 inhabitants or more in the State, Baytown city and White Settlement town, were incorporated between 1940 and 1950. All the remaining 69 incorporated places of this size in the State shared in the growth of the urban population between 1940 and 1950, with the rates ranging from 3.0 percent for Palestine city to 815.0 percent for Grand Prairie city (table 4). In 1900 there was 1 city of 50,000 inhabitants or more in the State, with a population of 53,321; by 1950 there were 2,709,932 persons living in the 16 cities of this size (table 3). The proportion of the population of the State living in urban territory increased steadily from 17.1 to 59.8 percent over the 50-year period.

The first loss in the rural population of Texas came between 1940 and 1950. Despite this loss, the rural population of Texas increased from 2,527,951 in 1900 to 3,098,528 in 1950 (table 1). The loss of 404,907 between 1940 and 1950 from the 1940 total of 3,503,435 was at the rate of 11.6 percent. The proportion of the population of Texas living in rural territory declined from 82.9 to 40.2 percent over the 50-year period.

Counties.—The 254 counties in Texas ranged in size from Loving with a population of 227 to Harris with a population of 806,701 (table 5). Between 1940 and 1950, 108 of the counties increased in population as against 134 in the previous decade. The most rapid rate of increase between 1940 and 1950 was experienced in Andrews County, which had nearly four times as many inhabitants in 1950 as in 1940. In four additional counties—Ector, Midland, Moore, and Orange—the population more than doubled over the 10-year period. As in the previous decade, the largest numerical increase was recorded in Harris County, which had an increase of 277,740. The combined increase of Harris and Dallas, Bexar, and Tarrant Counties, the three other counties which had increases in excess of 100,000, accounted for more than three-fifths of the population gain for the entire State.

Minor civil divisions.—To the primary political divisions into which counties are divided, the Bureau of the Census applies the general term "minor civil divisions." The minor civil divisions in Texas are the justices' precincts or the commissioner's precincts, the latter areas being used only in 28 counties. The incorporated cities, towns, and villages form subdivisions of the minor civil divisions in which they are located. The Big Bend National Park in Brewster County is also a primary division.

Table 6 shows statistics on the population of each county by minor civil divisions for the last three censuses. The population of each incorporated place and unincorporated place is shown in italics under the population of the minor civil division in which it is located. When an incorporated place lies in two or more minor civil divisions, the population of the several parts is shown in table 6 in the appropriate minor civil divisions and counties, and each part is designated by "part." Figures on the total population of such places are given in table 7. Unincorporated places are designated by "uninc." Changes between the 1940 Census and the 1950 Census in the boundaries of the areas listed are shown in notes to table 6. For changes in boundaries prior to the 1940 Census, see reports of the Sixteenth Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 1045-1057, and reports of earlier censuses.

Incorporated and unincorporated places.—In 1950 there were 719 places in Texas incorporated as cities, towns, or villages and 47 unincorporated places of 1,000 inhabitants or more. Of the 5,080,431 inhabitants of the incorporated places, 467,765 were living in the 461 places of fewer than 2,500 inhabitants. There were 105,860 persons living in the unincorporated places, 51,105 of whom were in the 33 places of 1,000 to 2,500 inhabitants. The incorporated places in Texas ranged in size from Belcherville town with a population of 31 to Houston city with a population of 596,163.

Political units recognized as incorporated places in the 1950 Census are those which are incorporated as cities, boroughs, towns, and villages, with the exception that towns are not recognized as incorporated places in the New England States, New York, and Wisconsin.

The Bureau of the Census has delineated boundaries for the thickly settled urban fringe around cities of 50,000 or more and has also delineated boundaries for unincorporated places of 1,000 or more which are densely settled population centers without corporate limits. Although there are unincorporated places within the urban fringe, it was not feasible to establish boundaries for such places and therefore they are not identified as separate places.

The count of urban places in the 1950 Census includes all incorporated places of 2,500 or more regardless of location and unincorporated places of 2,500 or more which are located outside the urban-fringe areas. Incorporated places of less than 2,500 which lie in the urban fringe are not recognized as urban places.

Urbanized areas.—There were 12 urbanized areas in Texas. Of the 2,815,499 persons living in urbanized areas, 2,466,140 were in the 12 central cities of the urbanized areas and 349,359 in the urban-fringe areas. The urban-fringe areas had 197,025 persons living in 34 incorporated places and 152,334 in the unincorporated parts (tables 2 and 9).

Each urbanized area contains at least one city with 50,000 inhabitants or more in 1940 or according to a special census taken since 1940, and some urbanized areas contain two or more cities of 50,000. Each urbanized area also includes the surrounding closely settled incorporated places and unincorporated areas that meet the criteria listed in the section below on "Urban fringe." Thus, the territory of an urbanized area may be classified into incorporated parts and unincorporated parts. (See urbanized area maps.)

An urbanized area also may be divided into central city or cities and urban fringe as defined below.

Central cities.—Although an urbanized area may contain more than one city of 50,000 or more, not all cities of this size are necessarily central cities. The largest city of an area is always a central city. In addition, the second and third most populous cities in the area may qualify as central cities provided they have a population of at least one-third of that of the largest city in the area and a minimum of 25,000 inhabitants. The names of the individual urbanized areas indicate the central cities of the areas.

Urban fringe.—The urban fringe includes that part of the urbanized area which is outside the central city or cities. The following types of areas are embraced if they are contiguous to the central city or cities or if they are contiguous to any area already included in the urban fringe:

1. Incorporated places with 2,500 inhabitants or more in 1940 or at a subsequent special census conducted prior to 1950.

2. Incorporated places with fewer than 2,500 inhabitants containing an area with a concentration of 100 dwelling units or more with a density in this concentration of 500 units or more per square mile. This density represents approximately 2,000 persons per square mile and normally is the minimum found associated with a closely spaced street pattern.

3. Unincorporated territory with at least 500 dwelling units per square mile.

4. Territory devoted to commercial, industrial, transportation, recreational, and other purposes functionally related to the central city.

Also included are outlying noncontiguous areas with the required dwelling unit density located within $1\frac{1}{2}$ miles of the main contiguous urbanized part, measured along the shortest connecting highway, and other outlying areas within one-half mile of such noncontiguous areas which meet the minimum residential density rule.

¹ According to the new urban definition, the urban population comprises persons residing in urban territory but not necessarily in an urban place, which is defined as an incorporated place of 2,500 or more, or an unincorporated place of 2,500 or more located outside an urbanized area. Under the old definition, incorporated places of 2,500 or more and places urban under special rule are classified as urban places. There were no places urban under special rule in Texas.

² Includes 170,630 persons in urban territory outside of urban places.

³ Part of Oklahoma acquired by Texas upon settlement of a boundary dispute (U. S. Supreme Court decision of March 17, 1930).

Table 6.—POPULATION OF COUNTIES BY MINOR CIVIL DIVISIONS: 1930 TO 1950

["Uninc." designates an unincorporated place. "Precincts" shown in this table, unless otherwise stated, are justices' precincts. Figures for 1940 and 1950 not available for unincorporated places or places incorporated since April 1, 1940, unless given. Minor civil division figures for 1940 and 1950 do not necessarily add to county totals. Boundary changes between 1940 and 1950 are given in footnotes; for changes between 1930 and 1940, see reports of the 16th Census (1940), Population, Vol. I, pp. 1045-1057. Total population of a place located within 2 or more minor civil divisions appears in table 7]
